HEALTH WORKERS ON THE JOB EARLY

ARE IN SCHOOLS AT ELMO AND VICINITY TODAY

1ST AND 2ND GRADES

Is the Plan to Get to Schools Most Distant Early in Fall While Roads Are Good

Miss Margaret Scully and Mrs. Grace Bean, county health nurses, went to Elmo today and started the health work in the schools of the county. It is the plan of the health department to use the first month of school this fall to inspect as many school children as possible. During the inspection the nurses will look for symptoms of contagious diseases. If any children show signs of contagious diseases they will be asked to leave school until a physician pronounces them free from disease. Examinations of children will be conducted during the first month of school only in the first and second grades.

The health department in its inspection of schools will try and reach the schools most distant from Maryville during the nice weather of fall, as it will be more possible to reach those close to the health office during the severe weather.

During their work at Elmo today, one of the nurses busied herself with the inspection of the city school, while the other one worked in the rural schools.

NO UNITED STATES WAR SHIPS SENT TO SMYRNA

Reports of American Vessels Sent Were Without Confirmation, Navy Department Says.

Washington, Sept. 5. — The United States has not dispatched warships to Smyrna to protect the Christians from Turkish advances into Christian territory so far as the navy department was advised today. Reports that the American vessels were sent with the French and British squadrons were entirely without confirmation.

Smyrna, Sept. 5.—The British dreadnaught Iron Duke, bearing the admiral commanding the British Mediterranean fleet arrived here, its coming serving to allay apprehension on the part of the Greek local government and the population over the threatened invasion of Smyrna by the Turkish nationalists.

The Iron Duke will protect British interests, insure the maintenance of order and assist in the evacuation of the thousands of Christian refugees fleeing from the areas evacuated by the Greek army. It is expected France and Italy will send similar naval units to protect their nationals.

The American consulate here is being besieged by Greeks who wish to embark for the United States.

QUITMAN PICNIC TO START TOMORROW

12-PIECE BAND TO ARRIVE THIS EVENING

PROMINENT POLITICIANS

Brewster, Faust and Spratt Are Each Scheduled to Appear—Democrats Tomorrow

Quitman's big annual celebration and roundup is to begin tomorrow and continue for three days. It will be a varied affair and will be of interest to those from the oldest and most dyed in the woll Republicans and Democrats to the children who are thrilled by the playing of the band and by the fact that they will be able to get all the ice cream cones they want.

A 12-piece band from Robinson, Kan. will arrive this evening to furnish music for the event. There will be a merry-go-round and a stock company that will give thrilling shows in a tent in the evening and there will be an airplane and Indians and cowboys and bucking horses and wild steers.

Tomorrow is the day for the Democrats and their speakers will have full sway. W. E. Spratt, Democratic candidate for congress from the Fourth District, will be the principle speaker and it is probable that some of the county candidates will talk. The speaking will take place at about 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

Thursday is to be the day for the Republicans and R. R. Brewster, Republican candidate for United States senator, will speak. It was said today that Charles Faust, Republican candidate for congress from the fourth district, may be there. He was not sure whether he would be able to attend or not, it was said.

Friday is set to be the biggest day of all. It is on that day that the barbecue, in wihch whole steers will be roasted, will be held. After everyone has eaten all he can, will come an afternoon of festivities such as one seldom sees in this part of the country. The cowboys and Indians will put on a show similar to a regular roundup such as might be seen at some of the big picnics in the West. There will be "bronc twisting" and cattle roping. And there will be riding of the outlaw horses of the western part of the county. Most of the stock used in the roundup show will come off the Bilby ranches. The Bilbys put on the picnic every year for the people of the vicinity of Quitman and Northwest Missouri in general.

While the cowboys and Indians are putting on their show Friday afternoon on terra firma an airplane will be soaring among the clouds above.

PLASTERERS BEGIN AT NEW DORMITORY

CAFETERIA CAN BE OPENED FORE PART OF OCTOBER.

WORK PROGRESSING WELL

Girls Will be Provided With About Any Comfort That They Could Desire.

Ten plasterers started to work this morning plastering the new dormitory at the State Teachers College and seven partition men are working ahead of them to keep the partitions in as fast as the plasterers get to them. The partitions are all in on the basement floor. As soon as the basement is finished the men will go to the third floor and begin plastering.

The kitchen and dining room equipment for the cafeteria was ordered shipped from Chicago September 1 and should arrive here in a short time. The contractors have ordered the window sash shipped from St. Joseph and it should be here within a week. With the basement plastered and finished, the sash in the windows and the kitchen and dining room equipment installed the next move will be that of opening the cafeteria. The work that will be carried on in the other part of the building will not interfere with the operation of the cafeteria.

President Uel W. Lamkin of the College said yesterday that there is no doubt about having the cafeteria opened in time to care for the teachers who are here to attend the district teachers association, which is to take place October 11-13.

The cafeteria dining room is to be provided with forty-eight tables 48x30 inches. Four persons can be accommodated at a table, making a total of 192 that can eat at one time. Cafeteria meals will be served in the morning and at noon and the cafeteria will be open to the public. In the evening a regular meal will be served in the dining room and will be for occupants of the building only. For the evening two of the tables will be placed together so that eight of the girls may sit together.

In case of a banquet it will be possible to arrange a speaker's table so that the corridor may be used for additional tables and a larger crowd accommodated.

The kitchen and the dining room equipment is to be up-to-date in every way and has been selected with a special view to sanitation and is to be arranged with a special view of saving as much labor as possible. A storage room near the kitchen has a capacity for about a carload of food stuffs, and in addition to this there is a root cellar that will hold about a carload.

The cafeteria is to be open to the public and the general run of students in the College for the first two meals of the day the same that it is to the girls in the dormitory. The girls in the dormitory may eat there if they please or they may go elsewhere. For the evening meal, however, it will be different. Only the girls of the dormitory will be admitted and they will have to pay for this the same as they pay for their room, by the term. Mr. Lamkin said yesterday that the charge for a room and the evening meal for a term would be about $45 a girl.

TO SIGN BATTERY CONTRACTS TONIGHT

MARYVILLE TO HAVE HEADQUARTERS FOR BATTALION.

AT BURLINGTON JCT. TOO

Dr. R. C. Person to be on Duty at V. F. W. Hall to Examine Men This Evening.

Maryville has been assured of the second battalion headquarters for the 128 regiment of the field artillery of the Missouri National Guard, according to to Captain Eugene A. Maynor.

The men who are to be members of Battery C have been asked by Captain Maynor to be present at the Veterans of Foreign Wars headquarters at 7:30 o'clock this evening for the purpose of signing the contracts. The captain said that he would wire to Jefferson City tonight and ask that the inspectors be sent here Saturday to make the inspection of the outfit. The inspectors were here last week, but were unable to approve the organization because of the lack of the necessary blanks with which to fill out the contracts. The blanks are here now. Dr. R. C. Person will be the examining physician for the battery tonight.

Captain Maynor was at Burlington Junction yesterday to confer with L. E. Yaple, who has asked state headquarters if Burlington Junction might not be allowed to have a battery. He said today that Mr. Yaple has a good sized bunch of men who are in favor of belonging to a battery and that he believes that as many as thirty can be obtained there without any trouble.

Here is the plan that the captain has with regard to Burlington Junction and Maryville. Maryville will have Battery C. A service battery will be formed for which Maryville will furnish a band of thirty-two pieces and for which Burlington Junction will furnish the rest of the members, thirty or more. Burlington Junction will have its officers and do its drilling at Burlington Junction, keeping a part of the equipment at Burlington Junction and a part at Maryville.

"We are going right along with the organization now," said Captain Maynor today, "and we expect to make the organization at Maryville one of the best in the state."

Albany is planning to organize a combat train for the regiment and Rolf Raynor of Maryville was there yesterday talking with representatives of that place regarding it. He says that he does not believe that there is any doubt but that Albany will be able to raise the required number for a battery.

COUNTY COURT WILL ADJOURN THIS EVENING

Made Inspection Trip to Place Where A New Bridge Will Be Built on Pickering Road

The county court with members of the township board made an inspection trip to the bridge on the North road from the Burlington station and east of the Atherton place. The court with the assistance of the township and the county highway commission will build a new bridge at this place which will be a steel span eighteen feet wide with concrete floor, being similar to the bridge on the Wilcox road west of the Lou Rogers corner.

The county court intends to adjourn this evening. No settlement had been made at press time over the salary of Prosecuting Attorney Charles F. McCaffrey. The matter was expected to be brought before the court late this afternoon.

The auditors checking over the county books discovered the state was entitled to $658.65 in unclaimed criminal fees for a few years back. This money had been collected from the state and as the fees were never called for it was to go back to the state. The county court at their session yesterday ordered this money paid to the state treasurer, L. D. Thompson.

The court is sitting as a board of equalization today and going over the merchants' statements.

Gambling With Life

Tests made recently by officials of the Burlington Route at two grade crossings on its main line in Illinois disclose an appalling carelessness and disregard for the value of life and limb by the drivers of automobiles.

These tests were made near Plano, Illinois, where the Cannonball Trail crosses the Burlington, and at a country road crossing near Montgomery, Illinois. Both of these crossings were protected by the standard crossing signal and, in addition, one of them was also guarded by an electric alarm bell.

During eight hours, 772 vehicles passed over these crossings. Only 17 drivers—less than one out of every 45, stopped to make sure whether a train was approaching before crossing the tracks; 182 looked in one direction; 381 looked both ways; but, 192 failed to "look before you leap" and sped across the tracks without taking any precaution whatsoever to make sure that it was safe to cross.

Such a "don't care" attitude explains the increasing frequency of the appearance of such startling headlines as "Train Crashes Into Auto at R. R. Crossing." If such recklessness continues to increase, it soon will be proper to change the headline recording crossing accidents to read "Auto Crashes Into Train." The records of the Burlington show that during a recent year 20 per cent of all grade crossing accidents were caused by the automobile deliberately crashing into the train—the train having beaten the auto to the crossing.

Admittedly, the train has the right of way, but all the signals, bells, and whistles in Kingdom Come will not prevent accidents as long as the drivers of automobiles fail to heed their warning.

The construction of the building has reached such a place now that one may see just how it is arranged on the inside. Beginning with the north end of the basement floor comes the cafeteria dining room, south of which is the kitchen and serving room and a hall leading as far south as the main entrance. At one side of this hall is the office of Miss Mary Wooldridge, in which all the business and management of the cafeteria will be carried on. It opensh both to the kitchen and serving room and to the dining room.

In the south extension of the building and on the basement floor is the laundry room, in which the girls may launder all their clothes, if they care to do so. They may dry their clothes here and do their ironing. In the east end of the building is a suite of three rooms and a parlor for the help, other than the students that are hired in the cafeteria, and quarters for the College Conservatory of Music. The Conservatory has four or five practice rooms, five studios and an office for Charles R. Gardner, head of the Conservatory.

There is also a post office and a parcel post room on the basement floor.

On entering the building at the main entrance one comes to the parlors, the main one of which is 38½ feet square, with two smaller ones about 15 feet square. These may all be thrown together in case of a reception. To the north of these is the matron's suite. The office will be next to the matron's suite and from it any room in the building may be called by the system of telephones that is to be installed.

Opposite the matron's quarters is a kitchenette that the girls may use should they be entertaining at the parlors. With this is also an ironing board where they may do their pressing. The electricity and irons are to be furnished free of charge.

On the second and third floors over the laundry are large sleeping porches or salareriums. Next to them are dressing rooms. On the third floor is a suite for the nurse and an infirmary in case a girl is ill.

In the building are sixty-one double rooms, 13½ by 15 feet and sixteen single rooms, which are somewhat smaller, and there are eight rooms for three girls each.

The double room and those for three are arranged so that there is a bath room for every two rooms.

The building is to have rubber-stone in the halls and hard wood floors throughout. The hard wood floors and the window facings, doors and door jams will be the only wood, with the exception of the furnishings.

The heatline is being laid from the plant that heats the main College building.

Curious, Odd and Strange Happenings of the Daily News.

Washington, Sept. 5 (Capital News Service).—A woman patient in a Chicago hospital was treated with a tube of radium inserted in an incision in her body. When the surgeons went to remove it, it had disappeared. Rather than have the doctors suffer the loss of fourteen thousand dollars, she submitted to another operation to recover the tube which had burned through into another part of her body. The radium was found and the human radium mine recovered.

Montreal, Canada, is filled with independent young women who do not propose to abide by the dictates of Dame Fashion, but who will wear the short skirt of today regardless of what dress designers of Paris, London and New York say is the style. The "No Long Skirt League" already has hundreds of members pledged to wear skirts of present day length.

A Muskegon, Mich., woman in an endeavor to settle a family quarrel, left nearly two hundred thousand dollars to her daughter on condition that she apologized for her part in the quarrel to her brother. If she didn't, he was to receive the money. Readers have three guessts as to what she did.

The average Maryville man is a queer creature. When out in company he tries to be as agreeable as possible and when at home he tries to be as disagreeable as possible, the wife of one so tells us.

See that man strutting down the street with his nose in the air, the observer of the passer said to us the other day. That man has his coal all in the bin and paid for.

Louise, the stenographer, says she has heard a lot of people talking about letting the cat out of the bag but she has yet to see any person do it.

One of our friends at a cigar counter tells us there is no falling off in the sales of cigars in the summer time or increase in the fall. So he concludes men do not notice any heat producing qualities.

The observer of the passerby followed what he thought was a prowler for several blocks along Main street late the other night. He kept safely behind him as he dodged in and out of door ways. It turned out to be the night watchman.

Vagrant Musings.

Being as good as his bond does not mean much when some men are considered.

The average man needs all the mind he has without giving any one a piece of it.

Home to a lot of men is where the car is kept.

No man ever got headache by over thinking but a lot by over-eating.

There is only one class of people whose curiosity excells that of women. It includes the men.

A "Four" That Sets A New Standard

The 1923 Buick Four Touring—$885

In beauty of appearance, dependability and economy of operation the Buick four-cylinder five-passenger Touring has established an entirely new standard for four-cylinder cars.

Its low body with its clean, straight lines, accentuated by the high radiator and straight hood, give it a long, racy appearance that is new to cars of its class. Massive crown fenders add to this distinction, as do the snug-fitting, shapely top and the handsome drum-type head and cowl lamps.

And with this beauty has come a new riding comfort. The seats are deep and low with full leg room in both compartments. The steering column has been changed in position to increase driving ease and the gear shift lever has been raised to meet the driver's hand. A transmission lock, a windshield adjustable from the inside, and a transmission-driven speedometer likewise are among the many new refinements of this model.

Material changes also have been made in motor, chassis, and body construction which contribute still further to the wonderful performance record characteristic of Buick cars for twenty years.

The Buick line for 1923 comprises fourteen models: Fours—2 Pass. Roadster, $865; 5 Pass. Touring, $885; 3 Pass. Coupe, $1175; 5 Pass. Sedan, $1395; 5 Pass. Touring Sedan, $1525. Sixes—2 Pass. Roadster, $1175; 5 Pass. Touring, $1195; 5 Pass. Touring Sedan, $1935; 5 Pass. Sedan, $1985; 4 Pass. Coupe, $1895; 7 Pass. Touring, $1435; 7 Pass. Sedan, $2195; Sport Roadster, $1625; Sport Touring, $1675. Prices f. o. b. Flint. Ask about the G. M. A. C. Purchase Plan, which provides for Deferred Payments.

PARIS STREETS GET STRANGE NEW NAMES

War Heroes Have to be Honored, So Innocent Public Has to Suffer.

Paris, Sept. 5.—Paris is the most perplexing city in the world. Now, as though deliberately to make things worse, the municipal council threatens to rename many important streets.

It is an old French custom to honor generals, authors, statesmen, inventors and what not by naming streets after them. But France has so many men she delights to honor that even Paris hasn't enough new streets to go around. Old names must be changed, old associations shattered, old city directories rendered worthless, and the visitor bewildered to the point of headache.

It was a great war, the French say, and it must be followed by an equivalently great upheaval in the matter of street names. The council proposes to change at least nineteen of the good old names at one fell stroke of the ballot.

Among well-known streets familiar to every visitor to Paris for which a new name will have to be learned are the following:

The Avenue du Bois-de-Boulogne, which will be come the Avenue du Marechal Foch.

A continuation of the avenue will be the Avenue du Marechal Petain.

The Cours de Vincennes will become the Avenue du Marechal Joffre.

The Boulevard Raspail will have to be relcarned—Boulevard du President Poincare.

Part of the Avenue Malakoff will be renamed Avenue Georges Clemenceau.

The Place Medicis will become the Place d'Edmond Rostand.

The rue des Gobelins will be called the rue des Quatre-Freres-Peignot.

The rue de Magdebourg will become the rue de Montalembert.

Only One Really Understood.

It was Daisy's twelfth birthday, and she had been given a silver thimble. Her friends admired the gift, but Daisy kept her sentiments to herself. In the evening a very human aunt was shown the useful present.

"Poor child!" was her only comment.

"Those are the first words of sympathy I've had today!" said Daisy—and her pent-up feelings found relief in tears!

Anxious to Please.

At breakfast in one of the hotels an exceedingly fidgety and irritable person within two minutes of giving his order began to squirm and demand when he was going to get his food.

"Waiter," he demanded, for about the fourth time, "where's my chop?"

"It's on the grill, sir," the waiter responded. "Will you have it now, or wait until it's done?"—Philadelphia Ledger.

Ancient Roadbuilders.

Herodotus tells us that in Egypt a great king built a magnificent road across the sands for the transportation of materials for the Pyramids employing for this purpose 100,000 men for a period of ten years. This road was built of massive stone blocks and was lined on both sides with mausoleums, statues and temples. Traces of what may have been a part of this ancient highway are today found near the great Pyramids and comprise what is probably the oldest remains of a road surfaced with stone. Early historians write of wonderful roads radiating from the city of Babylon about 2000 B. C. and running to Susa, Ecbatana, Sardis and Nineveh, as having been paved with brick. The ancient Persians, Assyrians, Carthaginians, Chinese and Peruvians were all renowned road builders. Their works, however, have passed away.

Great Poet's Limitations.

One incident from "The Home Life of Swinburne," by Mrs. Clara Watts Dunton:

"His intelligence was so confined to pretty and imaginative literature that even the mechanism of a soda water syphon was beyond him.

"When for the first time I manipulated one in his presence, he gazed fixedly at me, evincing considerable apprehension for my safety.

"I succeeded in releasing a gentle stream into my glass.

"When I stopped, he said with an accent of admiration and surprise, 'How cleverly you did that; I couldn't have done it.'"

Still, the poet who can turn on the really sparkling liquid of verse has his compensations for mechanical handicaps.

Dormitory Girls Like To Be On Third Floors

Information received in Maryville from schools throughout the state where there are dormitories for girls show that the girls would rather room on the top floor of the building than any other place. At first thought the inquiring mind says "How Come? Are girls so full of energy that they just like to live on the third floor in order to get the exercise of walking up to the stairs?"

It is explained in this way. As the girl is on her way to her room, she is tired when she climbs the first flight she will stop and visit for a while with some one on the second floor. When she is rested and tired of visiting she will continue her journey to her own room.

But what of the girls who live on the second floor. If they want to study they are interrupted by those who stop in to visit so much. If they are having a little party or playing a game of cards they perhaps do not care to be interrupted by some one coming in.

The girls have found that when they live on the third floor Sue, Jane and Sally are not nearly so likely to "drop in." If they become lonesome and want to visit some one who is not on their floor, of course it is but a flight of stairs to the second floor.

Now, do you see why they want to be on the third floor?

WOMEN WERE STRONG AT LEAST IN MAKING BLUFF

But They Were Glad When They Had The Door Barricaded—the Match Box Had Fallen

"Give me my gun! Give me my gun!"

"Where is it? Where is it?"

"Sh! Sh! I haven't any," softly. Then, in a loud voice again, "Give me my gun!"

Thus, when the imaginary molester was frightened away by the would-be feminine bluff, two women who had been left in the house alone over night for the first time this year, stole out of bed and clad themselves in their kimonas prepared to meet their uninvited visitors in a presentable manner, and went in search of the night prowler whom they thought had entered their house.

The door of their room, which was on the second story of the home, was as far as they got. Here they mustered up the courage to turn on the light and enough strength to baracade the door with a dresser, stand and chair and slipped back into bed to await either the break of dawn or to loose themselves in restless sleep.

Courage was renewed with the coming of light and when the lower part of the house was examined the next morning it was found that the cause of their molestation was due either to the falling of a match box or it was the feminine instinct of a half awake women crying out for protection.

A PLEASANT PLACE FOR GENTLE FOLKS.

MACGREGOR

THIS year's golfing season has now reached the point where you are seriously interested in the development of your game. You are now down to business in earnest.

Nothing could afford you greater satisfaction—nor tend to help you achieve more splendid results—than to play the combination of a Master Driver, Brassie or Spoon with the Master Balanced Ball.

Never has the MACGREGOR name been put upon any product more worthy than these two to bear it. The success of the club was assured last season—but this year the demand has been greater than ever. The Balanced Ball is a later development—yet already so popular that it is almost impossible to keep pace with the demand.

You owe it to your game to investigate this remarkable playing combination. You may see them any day at our store—but come around soon.

Gasoline For Every Motor Car

DURING June, 1922, 271 thousand automobiles and trucks were produced as against 180 thousand cars in June, 1921, and 256 thousand cars in May, 1922. This is a new high record.

The estimated increase for 1922 in automobile registration for the 10 states served by the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is 500,000, making a probable registration for this territory of 3,850,000 automobiles and trucks besides a largely increased number of tractors.

This means that the already enormous demand for petroleum products will be materially increased. To meet this demand requires unremitting effort on the part of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana).

When you look down the street and see the curb lined with automobiles, parked so closely that you have difficulty in finding space for your car, multiply what you see by hundreds of streets in hundreds of towns all over the Middle West and you will have a faint conception of the problem confronting the petroleum industry.

Next consider that the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is performing without a hitch a large part of the job of supplying this multitude of machines with fuel. This is made possible by a superb organization and by keen appreciation of human values in business.

The same spirit of progressiveness which is applied to refining methods, machinery, stills, storage depots, and to distributing units is also applied to the personnel of 26 thousand men and women all interested in carrying out the Company's policy of serving the public well.

BLACK REPLIES TO CRITICS OF CON CON

PRESIDENT OF COLLEGE AT MARSHALL TELLS OF THE PROBLEMS

TO COMPLETE ITS WORK

"If You Have Not Grown Any Since 1875, Do Not Stand in the Way Of Those Who Have"

(By M. E. Ford, delegate to Constitutional Convention).

Jefferson City, Mo., Sept. 2.—The Constitutional Convention has been considering the reports of the Judiciary and legislative committees for the past two weeks and as I had already given the substance of those two reports I did not think it would be interesting to give them further consideration.

Trying to Discredit Convention

There is one matter that I have been ignoring to a large extent that I feel the people ought to know more about and that I want to consider briefly. It is a well known fact that the big interests and big politicians did not want this convention called and did everything in their power to keep it from being called. When it was called, in spite of their efforts to prevent it, they immediately got busy and sent as many of their own representatives here as possible in order to prevent anything from being done. And it is part of the game to drag out the proceedings just as long as possible in order to tire out the delegates who do want to do something and at the same time put out insidious propaganda to try to discredit the work before it is completed in order to defeat it at the polls.

Lucas Friendly to Corporations

One of the leaders of this group is John H. Lucas, of Osceola (not Kansas City). He poses as the friend of the poor and as the champion of the farmers. He tries to talk like a farmer, act like a farmer, dress like a farmer, claims to come from a farming section and would like to make you think he really was more of a farmer than anything else. As a matter of fact, while he claims Osceola as his home, he has practiced law in Kansas City for about forty years, and is the leading corporation lawyer there. For years and years he has been the chief counsel of the Standard Oil Co., the Metropolitan Street Railway Co., and other big corporate interests. This is the man who is the author of the "Lucas Resolution" that various farm bureaus were telegraphing the delegates to support. Lucas demanded the right to be heard on his resolution and as no one made objection he was allowed to speak. Of course he did not want to talk to the delegates; he wanted to talk to the newspapers and the people out over the state. Several others of his crowd took the cue from him and made speeches telling how they had opposed calling this convention, that the people did not want it, that the old constitution was all right and made their insinuations all to the effect that the convention ought to quit and go home. This brought Dr. W. H. Black to his feet. Dr. Black is president of Missouri Valley College at Marshall and was president of the new Constitution association, the organization that headed the movement for the constitutional convention. I am sending his speech in full and I only wish the people could have heard it. Dr. Black was so earnest, so honest and so candid, his words bore such a striking contrast to the hypocritical cant that had preceded, that the reaction of the audience was wonderful.

Dr. Black's Speech

Mr. Black: Mr. President.

The President: Doctor Black is recognized.

Mr. Black: Mr. President, in the first place I suppose that I have been as actively interested in providing the way for the existence of this Convention as any man here; secondly, I think I have been working at the job as long as anybody here; thirdly; I think I have been working in as competent a group of men and women as is here and fourthly, I think we, I, and others have been working with as patriotic a motive as any person that has ever attended a Constitutional Convention here or elsewhere. It has been a purely patriotic movement The lawyers of this State, far back in the beginning, began to plan for better things for the legal end of it, and in every State Bar Association, were having papers read by able attorneys and judges upon the needs of their profession, so far as the administration, interpretation and application of the law, etc., were concerned in this commonwealth.

In 1914, the State Teachers' Association at St. Joseph, Mo., Claude Phillips being President, because of disabilities they felt existed in connection with the educational work of this state, decided that a committee should be appointed to find some way by which provision might be made for more efficient work in the way of education. Is there anyone here that would challenge for a second the motive of a body of teachers, representing this great state, gathered together and considering the interests of its childhood, and of its future? Of course, it is important that the Bar Association consider its own work, wisely and deliberately, and with high motives. It is also just as worthy that the teachers of the State of Missouri, should gather together and year after year deliberate upon the things that might further the interests of the teachers and the schools, and of the boys and girls all over the State of Missouri, and all over the Nation, because both are involved in the work that they are doing.

In 1914, the Committee was appointed, Walter Williams, of Columbia, Chairman of the Committee; William P. Evans, the Ex-State Superintendent of Education was another member —President W. S. Dearmont of Cape Girardeau, another member, Dr. S. E. Davis, of Maryville, another member, and your humble servant had a place on that Committee in 1914.

In order that the furtherance of the work in hand might be made effective we went before the political parties, in order to get planks in their platform, favoring the calling of a constitutional convention, in order that a wider provision and a more effective one might be made for the educational work in this state. It was a difficult matter to get planks into the platforms of the political parties, favoring a new constitution for the State of Missouri.

We worked on, and were baffled at various points, until finally it became apparent that the sensible thing was to form a combination with all of the great state interests in behalf of a new constitution movement. The State Bar Association joined with us freely, the State Medical Association, the State Bankers Association, the Farmers, the Stock Raisers, the Women's Clubs and the various state-wide organizations, including the Federation of Labor, joined with us in the movement. Fourteen organizations were affiliated in the organization of what was known as the State Constitution Association. They did me the honor of making me the president of that Association. One of the first things that was done was to frame the amendment which was done through the service of men like John M. Atkinson, of St. Louis, Fred Lehman, Henry Beardsley, and other men known to every one of us. When that amendment was proposed to the people by the Initiative, it was carried at the general election of 1920. That was the time when all of the people were gathered together and voting on important matters, and because it was passed, it provided the way, and its printed form is before you in the Constitution for this Convention.

I do not like to hear men talking about this Convention, talking of it as if it was some upstart thing that has no history. It was born in the conscience and the soul of the people, who lay nearest to the heart of its childhood and of its future. There never was a more serious call made for men and women to come together in solemn conference on great issues than are now reposed upon us.

After the amendment provided for the Constitution at the general election had been adopted by the people, then the bills providing further whether the Constitutional Convention should be called was submitted to the people. It was a special election, and I understand from those who are familiar with the history that a special election never calls out a large body of voters, but it was put over and without "log-rolling." As President of that State Association for the new constitution, I did not make a single speech in order to help on the cause. It was reposed upon the conscience and the will of the people of this State.

The next step was a very important one, submitted to the people at the same time, namely, to make eligible to office, the women of this State, simultaneously with this movement, and to bring that other half of our citizenship into active touch with the affairs of the State. That was carried.

Then the next thing was the nomination of the bi-partisan delegates to the Convention in the Senatorial Districts, as provided by law. Then, the political parties got busy—the politicians—because there is ten dollars a day, or because there was some other reason in the minds of men. I confess, very modestly, that I was one of the nominees, and few of those who had been most active in the promotion of the movement were named as nominees.

This Convention is here. Why did not the people go to the polls to elect the men and women who were to be on this Convention? Because, it was not necessary. One was Democratic, the other was Republican, and nobody has voted for anybody except the men of his own party—the women of his own party, and so we are here as a bi-partisan group of men and women, chosen to a great and responsible office, and I think this is the ambition of this body to continue at the job to which the people have called us, faithfully until we have done our level best.

Adjourn? Adjourn, with a score of years of history back of this movement? With motives in behalf of childhood and manhood staring you in the face, and with the Twentieth Century and its problems on your souls? Let's all be worthy of that high calling. Is it worthy with all of history back of us to declare that we have no job? Why, the greatest thing in the world is honesty—it is to express in language, the soul, the meaning, the purpose and ideals of this Commonwealth now— not in 1875. If you have not grown any since 1875, do not stand in the way of those who have.

Every state represents not one individual, not two or three, not a mere group, but it represents a composite whole. I think I detect at the beginning of one of the proposals of Mr. Gossett that he had read one of the books of Elisha Mulford, "The Nation" one of the greatest books in the world today. I thought his expression concerning the moral personality of the State had somehow been derived from that study, and is not his expression. It is one of the most statesmanlike books that has been written in the history of this nation in my judgment. Let's don't lose faith in the dignity of the call that has been made upon us. Let's don't for a moment lose the sense of responsibility. For the coming time with our minds back on the past, we may rise to the visions ahead, we must be responsible and careful, and no man can do his duty here who is not doing it with the sense that three million people are waiting on his action and that the future is in the balance of his judgment. Of course, I am opposed to any proposal to adjourn sine die. This going back to the people is not going to mean anything. If you cross your legs on the table and light your pipe to talk to Brother Smith about it he is simply going to say "uh huh" and there is the voice of the people, and you might just as well sit down where you are and make your judgment as to your responsibility in this matter and that you are going to have to answer to the people and to your God. You know the people of this state and you run around among them. Is there a single man in this Convention that can sit down and tell anybody else what this Convention is and what its sense of responsibility is and what its forces are and what its ultimate judgment is going to be? Not a soul. We are here to speak honestly, humanly, philosophically and religiously in a statesmanlike way in reference to the things that have been committed to us. Let us not dilly daily. I have not taken up much of the time of this Convention, but I have been as much associated with the history of the State and with the history of this Convention as any of them. I have thought of its problems I suppose as much as anybody, but I am stupid if my mind is not illuminated by the discussion and my vision cleared for future action. There are many still unsolved problems before us and there are some very great ones. Let us put forth our very best wisdom and courage and go into the task that that is before us.

Cline Called From Conference To Preach Funeral

The Rev. B. F. Cline, pastor of the Buchanan Street Methodist Church of Maryville, returned last night from the annual conference of the church that was held at Moberly. He did not get to stay for the entire conference, as he was called away at 3 o'clock Sunday morning to preach a funeral at Henrietta, for the Rev. W. C. Davis. The Rev. Mr. Davis was to be ordained at the conference and the bishop asked Mr. Cline to take his place in the funeral services, so that the ordaining could be carried out.

Women the Greatest Buyers in the World

THERE are 22,000,000 homes in the United States. The women who buy for these homes spend on the average $500 each, or a total of $11,000,000,000, each year. That is more than $36,000,000 every working day. Every year it amounts to half as much as America's Liberty Bond issue.

Each woman is a part of this army of buyers, and each if she will, may be guided to wise and economical purchases if she will but make up her mind each day to read as many as she can of the advertisements which manufacturers are printing for her benefit.

The advertising in every newspaper and every magazine is a buying guide for this greatest buying force in the world. This advertising makes it safe and easy for every member of this buying army to make her purchases.

It establishes in her mind a buying habit and gives her a preference of one brand of goods to another or an advertised article to one that is unknown.

It identifies for her a certain product as being standard so that she may easily dodge the wiles of sellers who try to sell something that is not so good.

It fixes merit an everlasting adjunct to certain articles.

It makes her know that the manufacturer who is proud of his product and jealous of his reputation and character cannot do otherwise than make his product at least as good as he says it is.

More than likely it is better.

Advertising points out where this greatest buyer in all the world's history may find quality goods by showing her pictures of them over and over again which enables her to recognize them easily and quickly.

Not The Work Of Shopcrafts Men

Editor of the Democrat-Forum,
Maryville, Mo.
Dear Sir:

In your issue of Aug. 26th, under the head of "Men made threats to a farm woman" it is stated that on Friday night, Aug. 25th, a number of men, supposed to be strikers from Conception Junction, went to the farm house occupied by Mrs. Ike Owens and children, two miles southeast of Arkoe, and threatened her with violence if her husband, father and brother-in-law, who are working at the roundhouse here, did not quit such work at once. This matter has been thoroughly investigated by the Local Lodge and on the night in question, Friday Aug. 25th., every member of the Union was present at roll call with the exception of those out of the state and a few who were attending the Chautauqua that evening. It is further reported that the men making the alleged attack were in a Buick and a New Model Ford. While a number of the strikers have cars, neither one of the above makes are owned by them. It was also stated in this article that a number of cases of violence to strike breakers and their families has occurred. This is also untrue. The members of the Shopcrafts Union of Conception Junction, now on strike, have not in any way violated ony of the laws of the land, neither do we intend to resort to violence.

We are MEN, not VANDALS, who are fighting for principle and as our cause is a just one we are not compelled to resort to such methods.

A Letter From J. T. Hays

To the Democrat Forum:

Thinking that my friends would like to hear from me and how I am getting along after my accident, will write a few lines for the paper.

I am at my daughters, Mrs. W. A. Argo, northwest of Skidmore where I have been ever since my accident. We were riding along when all at once the car wheel dropped down into what we supposed to be an old wolf den, throwing us out breaking my rib and tearing the ligaments loose in the small of my back.

I suffered intensly and was not able to be moved for several days without great pain. I am not bothered that way now but have high blood pressure and have to keep pretty quiet. The bandages had to be renewed every other day at first but now have to have them renewed only one a week. I am able to sit up two and three hours every afternoon. My knees are pretty lame yet from the injury but I'm able to walk from one room to the other by a little support.

Have the best of care from my oldest daughter. Also have a good doctor, namely Dr. Manning, and hope to be able to be back home in a few weeks.

I was very much surprised at the Relief Corps sending flowers out here to me and appreciated them very much. Also wish to extend many thanks to the Relief Corps for them. I have lots of flowers given me every day by neighbors and friends.

Mr. J. T. Hays.

Miss Mona Marie Everist was the week end guest of Miss Helen Curfman at the home of her parents Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Curfman on South Buchanan Street.

Produce Review

Cream deliveries during the week were lighter and prices are ruling higher for butterfat and butter. The tendency for further material advances at this time will probably be checked by withdrawals from storage stocks.

Receipts of fresh eggs are smaller, with good demand for fine stock. Heavier movement is noted from storage stocks to take care of the deficiency in fresh receipts. There is still a large surplus in storage to be disposed of.

Poultry movement is about normal for the season, and prices show but little change during the week.

Parnell School Opens Monday

The Parnell Schools will not open until next Monday, owing to the installation of a new heating plant and other improvements that are being made. J. M. Broadbent, formerly superintendent of the schools at Guilford will be in charge of the Parnell schools.

Mr. and Mrs. Orville Healy and little daughter, Pearl of Colfax, Ia., are guests of Mrs. Healy's grandmother, Mrs. S. A. Yeo. They are en route to Ogden, Utah, for a visit.

FEWER AND BETTER LAWS

POLITICAL CREED OF GIRL LEGISLATIVE ASPIRANT.

IS PRACTISING ATTORNEY

Length of Skirts a Personal Matter With Women, Miss Sarah Lucile Turner Says.

By James L. Kilgallen.
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Kansas City, Mo., Sept. 4.—Miss Sarah Lucile Turner, Kansas City's only woman on a political ticket, has announced that she would start her campaign in earnest about the middle of this month—speeches, handshaking, kissing babies and everything.

"I may even kiss the grown-up babies, too," she smiled.

Miss Turner is twenty-four and very good to look at, although not a flapper. By no means, she made it plain, does she want to be made out a flapper. Deliver her! She likes to dance and make dates, et cetera, she said, but flapping—well, that was something else again.

Serious Young Woman.

She really is a serious miss, despite her external buoyancy. She is an attorney, with an office downtown, and she is determined to be elected to the State Legislature. She won the Democratic nomination easily.

Asked what is her political platform, she replied quickly:

"Fewer laws and better laws."

"There are too many joke laws—too many laws that can't be enforced," Miss Turner explained. "We need more school teachers and lawyers in the Legislature to look out for jokers in the laws that are passed. We need less laws, and those should be written so that they could be enforced."

Did she think the Volstead law was in the "shouldn't have been passed" class? Nothing—not one word on that subject.

Was she a "wet" or a "dry?" No answer.

Skirts. How long, or how short, should the girls wear 'em?

"It's a personal problem with a woman how long she wears her skirts," she replied.

She will go to the Legislature, if elected, with no "isms" whatever, she said. She doesn't believe in trying to legislate everybody.

Can't Legislate Smoking.

"Personally, I don't smoke," she said. "But if a girl wants to smoke I don't see how you are going to stop her by passing a law. There should be more personal supervision and less legal supervision."

Miss Turner revealed that the first suggestion that she enter politics came while she was a student at the Kansas City School of Law. During a discussion among seniors one day a male student remarked that he did not think women should enter politics, "because they haven't enough sense." This remark provoked warm retorts, and finally one student said to Miss Turner:

"Why don't you run for office Susie?"

"I will—first chance," Miss Turner flashed back.

Asked how her folks took to the idea of her entering politics, she said:

"Not very well at first. Mother votes, but that's all. She's of the good old fashioned type. At first she didn't like the idea of me running for the Legislature.

"But now—well, mother is my best booster, and she talks politics all the time."

INCORRECT SPELLING AND POOR ENGLISH, FOUND

O Tempora, O Mores! Collegians Murder Queen's English; "Poet Lariat" Is Title of Tennyson.

Columbus, O., Sept. 4.—Some mirth-provoking instances of incorrect spelling, grammatical error and other forms of poor English were found by an English instructor at Ohio State University here while reading essays and compositions submitted by a number of advanced college students in English composition.

Here are a few of the instances:

Can You Recognize Them?

"Johnny John pops" (incorrectly used for "johnny jump-ups!"), "grape harbor," "pedals of a rose," "tracks of land, "brenkface," "ship-sheep" (for "shipshape"), "wig" (of a candle) and "wreckord" (for record).

One student defined sorority as a "group of girls bonded together on planks and platforms carefully laid and bound by ties that bind." Another student said that inductive reasoning is "going from the perpendicular to the general."

Tennyson Is "Roped in," too.

Tennyson was a "poet lariat," according to one student. A girl student confessed that all the English she had "is almost negligent." Two rules of grammar were given as follows; "A comma is a bad blunder."

The English instructor attributed most of the blunders to carelessness and "just plain ignorance." Other university professors laid the blame at the doors of those responsible for "lack of emphasis in high schools and grammar grades on reading and spelling."

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our sincere thanks to the following who showed such a great kindness during the illness and in the departure of our beloved mother, Mrs. Catharine McKibban: Our neighbors, Dr. and Mrs. O. L. Curl and the Bailey-Cumming Furniture Company. Dr. F. M. Ryan did much to relieve her suffering and we thank him especially. We appreciated very much the floral offerings made by Mr. and Mrs. Joe Cohn, Mrs. Claud Stults and J. P. Erickson and daughters and the Kissinger Greenhouse, and wish to thank them also.

DOES NOT LIVE ON NECTAR

Department of Agriculture Corrects Misapprehension About Food of the Humming Bird.

There are some misconceptions about the humming bird, the smallest of the bird race, but there are many misconceptions about other birds. However, the Department of Agriculture desires to correct a very popular misunderstanding as to what the little humming bird eats.

Speaking through its biologists and its ornithologists, the department says that, contrary to almost universal belief, the humming bird does not live upon the nectar of flowers, though nectar forms an important part of its diet. The bird will hover in front of a cobweb, picking off insects and perhaps the spiders entangled in the net. They will capture food on the wing, after the manner of the fly-catchers. Stomach examinations show that a considerable part of the food of the bird consists of insects, with sometimes a very little of vegetable matter. The rubythroat is the only humming bird which inhabits the eastern part of the United States, and it is more or less common everywhere in that region. It eats concentrated sweets, but its favorite animal food is spiders. Gnats or small flies are eaten.

KILLED ENEMIES BY PROXY

Many Races of Savages Had Implicit Faith in Their Power to Bring About Death.

Sympathetic magic used as a means of wreaking vengeance upon an absent enemy was believed in and practiced by savages in widely separated parts of the world.

The principle on which the theory was based was that like produces like, or that by hurting an image of a man you would thereby hurt him. The Ojibway Indian desiring to harm an enemy made a little wooden image of him and ran a needle through its head or heart. Or he shot an arrow into it, firmly convinced that his foe would at the same instant be seized with a sharp pain in a corresponding part of his body.

A Malay charm consisted in making a wax image of the person marked for destruction, in which were some of his hairs. The figure was scorched over a lamp every night for seven nights with the following words: "It is not wax I am scorching, but it is the liver, heart and spleen of So-and-So that I scorch." After the seventh time the figure was burned and the victim was then thought to have died.

Monarch Admired American Poet.

Louis I. King of Bavaria, was one of Edgar Allan Poe's greatest admirers.

A writer for the Figaro chanced one day to leave by mistake the proofs of an article on Poe where it came to the attention of King Louis. The king sought the writer to question him. "Until then," runs the description of the scene that took place, "the king's manner had been quiet and gentle almost to effeminacy, but the moment Poe's name was mentioned he became all eagerness and animation. His magnificent eyes lit up, his lips quivered and his whole face was beaming and radiant. 'Is it a personal account of him?' he asked, referring to the proofs. 'Did you know Poe? Of course you did not though; you are too young. I cannot tell you how disappointed I am. Just for a moment I thought I was in the presence of someone who had actually known that most wonderful of all writers, and who could, accordingly, tell me something definite and authentic about his inner life.'"

Punish Flirts With Death Penalty.

Flirts are not tolerated in Zululand on the east coast of Africa, according to Olaf Linck, Danish author and explorer.

The Zulus usually kill men when they make advances to married women. The status of women has greatly improved, the explorer found. The high cost of living has had the effect of limiting the practice of polygamy to the extremely rich. In former years a man could purchase a wife for eight oxen, but now the price has gone up to almost twice that number of animals. Parents are adopting the expedient of disposing of their marriageable daughters on the installment plan, the terms generally being two oxen down and the remaining at fixed intervals. If a husband defaults on his payments there is a law which provides for his going to work in the service of his father-in-law until the value is covered.

The Cheerful Robin.

It would go hard with the birds if their case were left to be decided upon argument alone. But robins are their own best advocates, says the Detroit Free Press. They come in the spring—vandals that they are—and start a deeply planned campaign to cultivate everybody's friendship. The deep woods know them not; they never skulk in the brushes nor flee the presence of man. Instead they choose the lawn for a hunting ground, build their nests even on porches and window sills, and never let the sun go down without a song delivered from the most conspicuous perch on the place. The robin's cheerfulness is irresistible; his neighborliness compelling. It is absolutely impossible not to like him when he offers such convincing proofs every day that he likes men.

MISS MAUDE YEARY OF RAVENWOOD WORKS HERE

Miss Maude Yeary of Ravenwood began work Saturday in the Joe Cohn store. Miss Yeary will stay with her aunt, Mrs. John Lockhart, on West Fourth street. She has had three years' experience in the mercantile business, having worked last in the Kirkbridge Mercantile store at Ravenwood. She quit the last position in January to come to Maryville to be with her brother, Joseph Yeary, who was in the St. Francis hospital at that time. FOOTBALL MEN BEGIN PRACTICE AT M. H. S.

Seven Letter Men of Last Year are Out, Along With a Number of Numerals and New Material.

The football boys of the Maryville High School had their first work out for this season last night at the College gridiron. On account of the hot weather no scrimmage was held, the boys practiced running down punts and falling on the ball. After about a two-hour work out they were made to trot back to the high school building and take a shower bath and dress.

In speaking of the prospect for this year's team Coach Frank Lawerence said that it was bright and that out of the material that reported yesterday a heavy line could be developed together with a fast backfield. By next week it is hoped the boys will be in such condition that harder workouts may be had.

The training rules will be severe this year and only boys who keep the strictest of training would be placed on the team. Coach Lawerence said that training was in his mind the first qualification for a football player and that if a man is in good condition he is not near as likely to be injured as when not in training, besides being faster on his feet.

The letter men who reported for the practice yesterday afternoon were: Captain Harold O'Banion, Leroy Jones, Vodre Willoughby, Arthur Hartman, Orville Fannon, Homer Ogden and Oren Masters.

The numeral men were: Maurice Chick, Jarvis Bush, Joe Phipps, Donald Herndon, John Curtman, Harold Miller, Robert Mountjoy, Stewart Tulloch, Isaac Miller, Lavelle Smith and Ethelbert Wright.

The other men out were Richard Holt, Donald Bellows, Carl Craig, Buster Hunt, Fred Street, Robert Godsey, Roy Fisher, Julius Lowry, Laverne Robey, Jay Caudell, Clarence Van Warmer, Ralph Curfman, Donald Dow, Floyd Cook, George Murray, Dean Dorman, Porterfield Cockayne, Clarence Hughes, Ralph Hall, Elmer Nicholas, Waldo Lemon and William Gaugh.

Several old Maryville rooters were out to the college field last night to watch the boys in their practice.

Harry Cowen of the Lone Valley school district was in the city today.
